DRINK HABIT.

What the Heads of Some Large Concerns Think of It

How the managements of big plants view the drink habit and its results, appears from the following extracts from letters, that are typical of all others on the same subject written by heads of iron and steel industries:

"Moderate drinkers are not as efficient or reliable as those who do not drink, but our county has been dry for four years, so that our conditions are much better than they were prior to four years ago."—The Logan Iron and Steel Company, Burnham, Pa.

"We give bonuses to abstainers among our foremen. Our aim is to keep our organization free from liquor, and we base this upon its commercial value to us."—The Delaware River Steel Company, Chester, Pa.

"The effect of the moderate use of liquors upon the working efficiency and reliability of men is bad."—The Central Iron and Steel Company, Harrisburg, Pa.

"Moderate drinking is detrimental to efficiency and reliability."—The Penn Steel Castings and Machine Company, Nicetown, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Drinking, even moderately, interferes with efficiency and reliability."—The Nicetown Plate Washer Company, Nicetown, Philadelphia, Pa.

"We have very little trouble with our men. As a whole, they are a sober, industrious lot; most of them own their own homes."—The Sweets Steel Company, Williamsport, Pa.

"No one remains a 'moderate' drinker. They either stop altogether or become heavy drinkers. We discharge without mercy men who report for work under the influence of liquor."—The Harrisburg Pipe and Pipe-Bending Company, Harrisburg, Pa.

"We use every moral force to keep men out of saloons."—The Wyoming Shovel Works, Wyoming, Pa. (Fifth in output in the United States.)

LOCATING THE TROUBLE.

When one is suffering from backache, rheumatism, lumbago, biliousness, sharp pains, sore muscles, and stiff joints it is not always easy to locate the source of trouble, but nine times out of ten it can be traced to overworked, weakened or diseased kidneys.

FATTENING HOGS.

Since there is such an abundant mast this year our people do not need to worry much over how they will be able to fatten their hogs, but those who are fattening hogs on corn, the fact that there is a cheaper way than all corn should interest them.

In a test in Alabama it cost $7.38 to produce 100 pounds of grain with corn alone and $5.75 when one part of cottonseed meal to two parts corn was used.

THE COLDS OF MANKIND CURED BY PINES!

Have you ever gone through a typical pine forest when you had a cold? What a vigorous impulse sent! How you opened wide your lungs to take in those invigorating and mysterious qualities. Yes, Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey possesses those stimulating qualities and overcomes hacking coughs. The inner lining of the throat is strengthened in its attack against cold germs. Every family needs a bottle constantly at hand. 25c. 2.

Monterey.

A box supper stunt was pulled off at the Spencer Point school house Friday evening that realized thirty odd dollars cash. El Storie is the teacher.

R. P. Smith, formerly train master on the I. C. railroad, has purchased a large boundary of land on the Wilder branch three miles north of town and is clearing and enclosing it with a fence. He proposes to engage in the cattle business.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hicks, of Nashville, visited relatives here last week. He was formerly employed by the I. C. here, but is now an employee of the Franklin Interurban.

Millard Sehon has become a practical chauffeur since purchasing an automobile a few weeks ago. He frequently makes trips to Sparta, Livingston, Jamestown, and other nearby towns. He has severed his connection with the Officer Hardware Company and devotes his whole time to the jitney business.

Rev. J. W. Wood, pastor of the Baptist church here, was pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening when a number of his members and friends stormed his castle loaded with lots of good things to eat. It was the beginning of his second year's work here. He is greatly appreciated as a preacher by all who know him.

The two-story wooden structure belonging to T. E. Goff, on Commercial Avenue, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning. Loss covered by insurance.

There is an unusually large crop of acorns in the woods contiguous to Monterey. Hogs are reveling in ecstatic bliss on this product of the oak tree and are assuming a rotundity of form that greatly pleases the owners.

Miss Letha Rowland visited friends in Mayland over Sunday.

A number of Halloween pranks were pulled off here Saturday night, supposed to have been performed by ghosts, hobgoblins or something of the kind. Jess Heady, a farmer living west of town, found his mule harnessed and hitched to his wagon early the next morning. Mr. Heady is unable to account for the strange occurrence as he is sure he put him in the barn the evening before.

GO TO COLLEGE.

The Southwestern University Offers
Chance for Young Men to Work
Their Way Through College.

The Southwestern Presbyterian University, at Clarksville, is prepared to offer deserving young men a chance to pay a part or all of their way through college. Any young man who is willing to do any kind of honorable work to help him through college will do well to write President J. R. Dobyns, Clarksville, Tennessee, for information.

"NOTHING MORE TO INVENT."

Some Things That Have Been Invented
Since a Man Wrote That Seventy-Seven Years Ago.

Someone poring over the old files in the United States Patent Office at Washington the other day found a letter written in 1833 that illustrates the limitations of the human imagination.

It was from an old employee of the Patent Office, offering his resignation to the head of the department. His reason was that as everything inventable had been invented the Patent Office would soon be discontinued and there would be no further need of the services of any of his fellow clerks. He, therefore, decided to leave before the blow fell.

Everything inventable had been invented! The writer of this letter journeyed in a stage coach or a canal boat. He had never seen a limited train or an ocean greyhound.

He read at night by candlelight, if he read at all in the evening; more likely he went to bed soon after dark and did all his reading by daylight.

He had never seen a house lighted by illuminating gas. The arc and incandescent electric lights were not to be invented for nearly half a century.

If he had ever heard of electricity he thought of it as the mysterious and dangerous fluid that strikes from the clouds during a thunderstorm. That it could be harnessed to do man's will had never occurred to him.

He never heard the clicking of a telegraph sounder. The telephone would have seemed as wonderful to him as a voyage to the moon.

Motion pictures would have reminded him of black art, and the idea that a machine could be invented whereby man would fly above the clouds like a bird, ascending and descending at will, would have seemed to him merely absurd.

The modern printing press, the linotype machine, which seems to think; the X-ray, by means of which surgeons diagnose disease and injury and lay out their work with scientific certainty, these things were yet to be invented long after he was dead.

He could not imagine the automobile, now so common that they cover the streets and roads of all the world.

He could not dream that a cannon would be made to throw a projectile more than twenty miles, that repeating rifles, revolvers, and machine guns would be invented, that steel monsters of the deep would speed invisibly under the seas with the power to send a giant ocean liner to the bottom within a matter of moments.

He lacked the imagination to see all the thousand and tens of thousands of comparatively small inventions that have come into being since his day, some of them for good and some for evil, but all telling a story of progress of one sort or another.

Probably in this he did not differ from most of his fellowmen in his day. It is very likely most of his friends agreed with him that the limit of invention had been reached.

He seems unfortunately deficient in imagination and in optimism, as we read of his letter of resignation in the musty files of the Patent Office.

But let us not take too much umbrage to our souls. We are quite as ignorant of what the next eighty years may bring forth as he was of the future of American inventions.—Scientific American.
